- Mount Ainslie Lookout
- The Australian War memorial

Immerse yourself in Australian culture. Tour Parliament House and the War memorial, See the Southern Highlands, Wineries, Lake Burley Griffin and Mount Ainslie lookout

Canberra lies 290 kms to Sydney's southwest, the drive leads us through the Southern Highlands a region that boasts an abundance of heritage buildings and historic landmarks take a morning tea break at Bowral or Goulburn for morning tea.

The National Capital Exhibition Centre on the shores of Lake Burley Griffin provide a fascinating account of the design and development of Canberra. Parliament House is open, even when the members are sitting gather for the free guided tour through the complex and both parliamentary houses. The Australian War Memorial honours the victims of all wars. Also housed here is the largest war museum in the world.

Mt Ainslie Lookout provides great views over the parliamentary triangle and the city. Head down to the lake or stop at Mount Majura vineyard to taste the cool climate wines before returning to Sydney.
